Paul Noe is the Vice President for Public Policy at the American Forest & Paper Association. At AF&PA, Paul works on a wide variety of issues, including Clean Air regulation, renewable energy, greenhouse gas regulation, sustainability, and chemical regulation. He also serves as Co-Chair of the Rulemaking Committee of the ABA Section of Administrative Law & Regulatory Practice.

From 2001-2006, Paul served as the Counselor to Administrator John Graham in the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs at the White House Office of Management and Budget. At OMB, Paul participated in interagency reviews of draft regulations and helped to develop government-wide best practices for guidance documents, information quality, and peer review.

From 1995 to 2001, he served as senior counsel on the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee for Chairmen Fred Thompson, Ted Stevens and Bill Roth. During his time in the Senate, he worked on bipartisan regulatory reform legislation, including the Thompson-Levin Regulatory Improvement Act, as well as SBREFA, the Congressional Review Act, the Negotiated Rulemaking Act, the Administrative Dispute Resolution Act, the Truth In Regulating Act, and the Regulatory Right-to-Know Act. He also was responsible for a wide variety of other issues in administrative and environmental law, climate change, energy policy, federalism, property rights, privacy, paperwork reduction, and government oversight.

Paul also has practiced environmental and administrative law and government relations in the private sector. Early in his career, he served as law clerk to Judge Charles Richey on the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Paul is a graduate of The Georgetown University Law Center, where he was an Associate Editor of the Georgetown Law Journal and an Olin Fellow in Law & Economics. He has a B.A. from Williams College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.
