FOLEY'S ESG REPORT
ENVIRONMENTAL | SOCIAL | GOVERNANCE
EXPLORE OUR 2023 REPORT
MESSAGE FROM OUR CEO

Foley & Lardner LLP operates our law firm based on a set of core values that address how we serve our clients, engage our people, and give back to our communities to make them stronger. While our core values have allowed us to grow our legal practice for 180 years, they also serve as a roadmap to measure our progress through the lens of Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) issues.

In 2021, in response to client demand, we formalized our ESG team by bringing together our lawyers who have been advising clients on numerous ESG issues. Today our team comprises over 100 lawyers from a wide range of practice groups. After advising clients with their ESG-related issues, we determined that it was time for us to begin collecting and sharing our progress.

This inaugural ESG Report is the result of our firm’s honest self-evaluation that encompasses measuring our current environmental foot-print, documenting our social and employment programs, and specifying our organizational governance structure.

I invite you to review our ESG Report, and I welcome your feedback as always. We are confident that our future ESG performance will change and improve over time. This has been the story of Foley since our founding in 1842 — consistently changing and improving.

Daljit Doogal
Chairman and CEO
Foley & Lardner LLP
Foley has focused on providing exceptional legal services to its clients since its founding in 1842. Our core values have allowed us to sustain our legal practice through the generations – they offer a grounding for this ESG Report, and they say a lot about who we are at Foley.
As investors demand increasing company attention to environmental policies, diversity and inclusion programming, corporate governance, and associated operations, Foley helps its clients understand and navigate the cross-currents in the swift flow of ESG-related law. While EU- and U.S.-based governmental agencies, as well as organizations like the World Economic Forum, the Value Reporting Foundation (the overseer of SASB standards), the Task Force on Climate-Related Financial Disclosures, and the Greenhouse Gas Protocol are establishing different reporting frameworks and standards, businesses must decide which to follow. We identify the risks and rewards, ferret out the often-hidden pitfalls that embarrass or surprise earnest executives, and guide acquisitive parties through the due diligence process that leads to the successful conclusion of an ESG-compatible transaction.

Foley leverages a deeply experienced, cross-disciplinary team to help clients identify material issues, develop strategies and programs, and ultimately achieve transparency and compliance that satisfies investors and watchdogs alike. We seek to protect clients’ long-term value and profitability, and to turn challenges into opportunities. Our services span legislative, regulatory compliance, litigation, and reputational concerns and are grounded in hundreds of years of combined experience, offering both long-term and up-to-the-minute insights and guidance to clients. While we certainly may assist with individual components of ESG, our greatest value lies in bringing together multidisciplinary legal practitioners who help clients align their end-to-end operations and design a comprehensive approach to full-company ESG compliance that they can defend and highlight. Our ESG team includes attorneys in more than a dozen practice areas, including:

- Capital Markets and Public Company Advisory
- Labor & Employment
- Environmental and Energy
- Government Enforcement Defense & Investigations and Securities Litigation
- Real Estate
- Cybersecurity & Data Privacy
- Government Solutions
This is a living document, subject to ongoing revision as we pursue and achieve continuous improvement. It is our hope that Foley represents an example of a committed, caring organization now and a model for the legal industry going forward.

Foley Environmental Policies, Initiatives, and Practices
Environmental protection and stewardship are now core tenets of business plans. We can improve the sustainability of our systems to reduce pollution and combat global warming, no matter what type of industry we function within. While it is true that our “E” section looks different than that of an energy or manufacturing company, it is nonetheless crucial that we take into account our current policies, impacts, and ways to improve.

Importantly, Foley’s 22 U.S. offices operate somewhat independently, allowing for flexibility within the communities in which we practice. Every office has an office managing partner, who oversees legal operations, and an office administrator, who oversees business operations. With input from leadership and local business professionals, these two roles spearhead activities and operations from location to location. While this flexibility is important to Foley’s success and service to clients, it means sustainability efforts vary from office to office. As part of this ESG reporting initiative, we conducted a detailed and comprehensive Environmental and Sustainability Survey (E&S Survey) across our 22 U.S. offices. Based on the survey results, we have provided below a current snapshot of Foley’s efforts to run a sustainable, environmentally responsible business.

A key goal of our ESG reporting initiative is to identify opportunities to improve energy use and sustainability across offices. Using the results from the initial E&S Survey as a baseline, we aim to improve on metrics related to Energy Usage, Water Usage, Renovations, and Office Administration and Activities by the time we publish the next version of our ESG Report.

The full results of the E&S Survey are included in the Appendix.

Since then, all of the firm’s 22 U.S. offices have engaged with local Clubs on programs and initiatives that are responsive to the Clubs’ needs in that community. Foley’s Mexico City office also began a partnership last year with Pro Niños de la Calle, a local charitable foundation working with children living in challenging conditions. STREET LAW LEGAL DIVERSITY PIPELINE PROGRAM

Foley’s unique Street Law Legal Diversity Pipeline Program provides high school students from diverse backgrounds with an engaging, highly interactive experience featuring a variety of legal topics and mock trials and negotiations. It also has led to internships at Foley and at firm clients and has fostered lifelong mentoring relationships. In 2022, our Milwaukee office hosted a semester-long, in-person Street Law program for 27 teens from 13 area high schools who were members of the Boys & Girls Club (BGCA) of Greater Milwaukee. Foley’s Los Angeles office held its first-ever Street Law program in 2022, hosting 18 students from Metro LA BGCA’s college bound program.

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. ANNUAL ORATORY COMPETITION

Each Martin Luther King Jr. Day, Foley hosts an oratory competition to encourage students to learn more about Dr. King and to help cultivate the writing and speaking skills of elementary school students and pay tribute to the late civil rights leader’s legacy. First initiated 30 years ago by the Gardere Wynne Sewell law firm, with which Foley combined in 2018, the program now takes place in Dallas, Houston, and Chicago. In our January 2023 competition, fourth- and fifth-graders delivered original speeches addressing the topic: “What would Dr. King say to us today about hope for tomorrow?” The final rounds were held live in Chicago, Dallas, and Houston on January 13, 2023.

Professional Development – Innovative Programs

Here are a few of the innovative professional development programs we offer to support our talent.

Foley Bound
The firm launched Foley Bound in 2022 in response to the challenges that the worldwide coronavirus pandemic created for travel and togetherness. It empowered our new associates in the 2020 and 2021 classes to plan a thoughtful “Foley Bound” trip to visit another office of their choosing, providing them with a unique chance to meet people they had been working with remotely and build relationships with their colleagues. The program has now been expanded to all new and lateral associates and senior counsel.

Foley Connect
We invest deeply in helping each of our attorneys build a long, successful career here at Foley. We also know that professional interests and life circumstances can change, so we’re equally dedicated to supporting those who choose to seek opportunities outside of the firm. In early 2022, we launched Foley Connect, a curated internal job board featuring dozens of in-house legal positions. Foley Connect is a key part of our growing career transitions program.

Career Conversations
Foley recognizes that substantive feedback is an essential development and retention tool for associates. In 2022, the firm replaced its spring associate performance review process with Career Conversations. This new process facilitates meaningful, forward-looking dialogue between our more junior attorneys and their Practice, Office, and Department leadership, with a focus on supporting personal and professional growth and charting a path for their career objectives.

Chambers Associate 2022 Satisfaction Surveys
In all six surveys, our junior associates rated Foley an “Excellent Performer” among the Top 25 law firms in the U.S.

Foley Governance Policies, Initiatives, and Practices
Administrative Structure

Foley operates as a limited liability partnership. The Management Committee is the firm’s central policy-making body. This committee selects a firm chair, who serves as the chief executive officer and is responsible for guiding and implementing the overall firm strategy. The management team also is composed of the firm managing partner, chief administrative partner, and chief operating officer, all of whom participate in Management Committee meetings in an ex officio capacity.

Each timekeeper in the firm is a member of one of three law departments — Corporate, Litigation, and Intellectual Property — that are each overseen by one department chair, with the administrative assistance of a department operating officer. Each department is composed of multiple practice groups, each of which represents a particular area of focus.

In order to institutionalize cross-department and cross-practice group communication and collaboration, the firm's structure also includes four sectors: Energy, Manufacturing, Health Care & Life Sciences, and Innovative Technology. These multidisciplinary sectors enable the firm to provide experience and services oriented around the client’s perspective.

The administrative operations of the firm are managed by a team of seven chief officers who report to the chief operating officer.
Committees and Compensation

Internal Committees
Foley has established a number of internal committees in order to solicit and encourage involvement by attorneys throughout the firm, receive input on matters of importance to the firm operations and policies, and strengthen firm culture. The chairman and CEO – in collaboration with other partners and key stakeholders and the diversity and inclusion partner – is responsible for the selection of committee members and appointment of committee chairs.

- Audit Letter Partners
- Business Practices Committee
- Contingent Fee Committee
- Counseling Partners Committee
- Finance Committee
- Opinion Committee
- Partner Selection Committee
- Pro Bono Committee
- Professional Responsibility Partners Committee
- Recruiting Committee
- Retirement Plans Committee

Partner and Associate Compensation
The Management Committee determines partner compensation at the end of each fiscal year, with the ultimate goal of ensuring that partners with similar overall contributions to the firm (both tangible and intangible) are similarly compensated. The Committee expends considerable time reviewing and discussing each partner’s financial, non-billable investment time, and other intangible contributions to the total enterprise value of the firm, in addition to the quantitative metrics attributable to the partner.

Foley compensates associates on a scale competitive with other large law firms, and the same scale is in effect for associates in all of the firm’s U.S. offices. Foley’s salary schedule and bonus program are consistent with our longstanding approach to compensate each associate fairly and competitively based on individual performance, the firm’s core value of recognizing our people as our most valuable asset, and our goal of recruiting, developing, and retaining world-class talent in order to provide excellent client service.
As a key component of its approach to governance, Foley maintains, reviews, and updates a robust body of policies that govern firm practices.

Summary of Key Policies

Anti-Harassment
All firm personnel are required to review and acknowledge the firm's anti-harassment policy annually and participate in regular anti-harassment training.

Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action
It is the policy of the firm to promote equal employment opportunities. The firm maintains affirmative action plans covering minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans.

Confidentiality
All firm personnel must maintain the confidentiality of information regarding the firm's clients, the business, and individuals who work at the firm.

Intake and Conflicts of Interest
The firm requires all attorneys to follow specific procedures with respect to the proposed intake of all new engagements that an attorney wishes to become involved in.

Insider Trading Policy
This policy restricts the use or disclosure by firm attorneys and other firm personnel of information concerning firm clients and third parties that constitute material, nonpublic information as defined by law.

Information Governance and Security Policies
All attorneys and business professionals are expected to understand and comply with the information governance and technological security policies and procedures, and are required to complete annual security awareness training.

Other Firm Policies
Foley maintains robust policies and systems for a number of other important business purposes, including: maintaining and preserving confidentiality, managing data, complying with applicable anti-bribery and anti-kickback laws, complying with obligations under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and similar rules and standards, approving certain outside business practices and investments by firm attorneys, and practices related to procurement, travel, and third-party agreements.
