Scott Lin helps founders and investors navigate the critical moments of building and scaling their venture-backed companies. He has advised on over 100 venture financings, from pre-Seed through Series G, and often serves as outside general counsel to management teams and boards. Nevertheless, Scott approaches every client with personal attention and treats each company's journey as singular – every founder's success is a milestone that is important to him.

Scott partners with technology companies from formation through exit, helping them raise capital, structure deals, and resolve complex business issues. He frequently leads cross-disciplinary teams to deliver integrated advice on matters ranging from intellectual property, commercial agreements, regulatory, employment, compensation and benefits, cybersecurity, privacy, tax, and litigation matters.

Prior to Foley, Scott was an Associate in the Emerging Companies and Venture Capital group at a nationally recognized firm. Earlier in his career, he taught business at the University of Western Ontario in Ontario, Canada. He is proficient in Mandarin Chinese.
