Ryan McNulty advises public and private companies, private equity sponsors, and founder-owned businesses on complex transactions and ongoing corporate matters. He guides clients through the full lifecycle of M&A transactions, including platform investments, add-on acquisitions, carve-outs, minority investments, recapitalizations, and exit transactions. His practice encompasses the full range of transaction structuring and execution matters, including management rollovers, earn-outs, seller financing, governance arrangements, and post-closing integration.

In addition to transactional work, Ryan advises clients on a broad range of general corporate and strategic matters, including entity structuring, governance and ownership arrangements, equity incentives, and commercial agreements. He frequently serves as a trusted advisor to management teams as companies grow, integrate acquisitions, operate within larger corporate groups, or prepare for strategic transactions or liquidity events.

Ryan has experience across a range of industries, including industrials, business services, healthcare services, energy, and technology-enabled companies. He is known for a hands-on, deal-driven approach and for serving as a primary day-to-day point of contact on transactions, coordinating closely with management teams, financial sponsors, lenders, and tax advisors.
