

Thomas P. Hansfield

Associate

thansfield@foley.com

Chicago

312.832.4329

Thomas “Tommy” Hansfield thrives on diving into complex subject matters, proving himself a quick study in ever-evolving industries, such as derivatives trading; agricultural and energy commodities; blockchain technology; and cryptocurrency. He assists clients in a range of commercial litigation, investigation, and regulatory enforcement matters.

Tommy has represented clients in contract disputes, antitrust litigation, class actions, and real estate litigation, and often defends clients in securities and derivatives matters, including investigations and enforcement actions by the Securities and Exchange Commission and Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC).

He provides regulatory counseling to clients, including assisting futures exchanges and clearing houses with drafting rules and assisting firms with their applications to register in a professional capacity with the CFTC. Tommy also advises CFTC registrants, securities broker-dealers, traders and trading firms, and others on compliance with regulatory requirements under the Commodity Exchange Act and federal securities laws.

Tommy is a member of the Commercial Litigation Practice Group and the Securities Enforcement & Litigation Group.

Sectors

- Blockchain & Digital Assets
- Innovative Technology

Practice Areas

- Commercial Litigation
- Litigation
- Securities Enforcement & Litigation

Education

- University of Minnesota Law School (J.D., cum laude, 2020)
 - Managing editor, Minnesota Law Review
- University of Wisconsin Madison (B.A., 2014)
 - Majored in legal studies and communication arts

Admissions

- Wisconsin
- Illinois