Emily Friend Horner is a special counsel and litigation attorney with Foley & Lardner LLP. Her practice concentrates on varied types of business and commercial litigation, representing lenders in complex commercial foreclosures, loan workouts, and bankruptcy proceedings; owners in real estate disputes; businesses in government bid protests and other administrative proceedings; public companies in securities litigation; and private and public companies in other business-related litigation. In this capacity, Emily serves a broad range of clients, including financial institutions, public companies, privately held businesses, professionals, developers, and contractors.

Emily represents clients at every level of litigation and has acted on a seconded basis internally with clients, giving her a unique and creative insight into serving businesses' needs.

She is a member of the firm's Commercial Litigation, Bankruptcy & Business Reorganizations, and Securities Enforcement & Litigation Practices.
