Molly Wotruba is a member of Foley's Trademark, Copyright & Advertising Practice. As a summer associate at Foley, Molly gained experience providing strategic counseling on trademark matters including clearance, prosecution, and enforcement. She also has experience researching industry trends and reviewing commercial agreements.

During law school, Molly interned at a global consumer products manufacturer. She researched National Advertising Division (NAD) standards to ensure advertising claims met industry guidelines. Molly also worked with local counsel to conduct global legal risk analyses for new business ventures, researched topics such as emerging chemicals of concern and litigation trends, reviewed commercial and partnership agreements, and researched laws and regulations related to recycling, biodegradability, and plastics.
