

George W. Ash Partner/Retired

George W. Ash is a retired partner and business lawyer with Foley & Lardner LLP. His practice was focused on government procurement law. George counseled clients on the preproposal, proposal, negotiation and performance of the U.S. government prime contracts and subcontracts, and on resolving contract disputes. He also has an extensive background in other types of procurements such as grants, cooperative agreements, CRADAs and Other Transactions, and assists companies with state and municipal contract issues.

George was the chair of the firm's Government Procurement Practice, which was recognized by Chambers USA (2011, 2012 and 2013) as one of the top practices in the nation. He was former chair of the Government & Public Policy Practice and previously served as chair of the firm's former Regulated Industries Department. He was a member of the firm's Automotive Industry Team as well as the Privacy, Security & Information Management Practice.

George has successfully litigated bid protests; negotiated the terms of contracts and subcontracts; submitted, negotiated and litigated claims; advised clients concerning audits and compliance issues and the preservation of intellectual property rights; and appeared before various Federal Boards of Contract Appeals and Courts.
