Avi Ginsberg is a cybersecurity and data privacy attorney with Foley & Lardner LLP based in Boston. He has substantial industry experience in cybersecurity and international business transactions. He regularly helps corporate clients respond to ransomware attacks and data breaches, evaluate privacy risk and compliance strategies for complex data sets, and develop kids' privacy approaches for online games and metaverse experiences.

Avi focuses his practice on nuanced cybersecurity and data privacy issues, including:

- advising clients on data privacy and information security programs,
- cybersecurity risk mitigation and incident response,
- artificial intelligence privacy compliance and reputational risk mitigation,
- website, web application, and mobile application privacy compliance,
- online trust and safety issues, and
- performing diligence in technology transactions.

Avi has over a decade of experience with web application design and programming, cybersecurity, databases, website exploit discovery/penetration testing, automation, bot development, software development, and reverse engineering.
