Arian Jabbary is an associate in Foley & Lardner LLP's Trademark, Copyright & Advertising Practice Group, based in the firm's New York office, where he advises on strategic brand counseling, complex licensing, internet/social media, copyright and content clearance, advertising, enforcement, mergers & acquisitions, business transactions, and litigation. He frequently counsels clients domestic and foreign in the fashion, beauty, luxury, entertainment, software, Web3, media, food & beverage, and financial services industries.

With a background in corporate law, stemming from his experience as associate general counsel for a global beauty incubator, Arian approaches his practice with a holistic and business-practical point of view, often proposing multifaceted solutions across subject areas. He also draws from his experience as an international fashion photographer to provide clients with an industry insider perspective. Arian co-leads the Beauty segment of Foley's Fashion, Apparel & Beauty Industry Team, where he also co-founded and presently co-edits the firm's Foley In Fashion blog.
