Trevor Mills works in our Business Law Department as part of our Transactions Practice Group. As a summer associate, Trevor performed due diligence on several deals, created formation documents, researched venture capital investment trends, and shadowed client meetings. He also drafted and reviewed numerous transactional documents including stock transfers, shareholder agreements and other ancillary documents.

Before joining Foley, Trevor worked as a Legal Intern at the International Association of Privacy Professionals, where he collaborated with the General Counsel and the Research and Insights team to create research publications on privacy and data security issues. He also provided memorandums on legal matters related to privacy, non-profit compliance, and international data transfers. Additionally, he served as a Law Clerk at Northeastern University's Office of the General Counsel, researching and presenting on multi-jurisdictional compliance topics, including data privacy, weapons, pay transparency, and discrimination.

Trevor also serves as the Treasurer and Board Member of a 501(c)(3) non-profit that provides scholarships and mentorship to underserved youth.
