Charlie Morris navigates the complexities of business disputes, bringing a strategic approach to resolving litigation challenges for his clients. He has experience managing cases through all stages of litigation, including mediating and negotiating settlements, drafting motions, performing discovery, conducting depositions, and witness preparation. With both first- and second-chair trial experience, Charlie brings a keen understanding of the intricacies inherent in commercial disputes. He regularly helps clients achieve favorable pre-trial outcomes.

Charlie has successfully represented a diverse range of clients, from small businesses to large corporations, and has helped them through legal challenges with precision and diligence. Charlie excels in assisting clients with partnership disputes, contract disputes, construction, real estate, and white-collar crimes, as well as general business disputes.

Before joining Foley, Charlie worked as an associate at a national law firm in Salt Lake City. Charlie began his career as a judicial extern for Judge David Sam at the United States District Court for the District of Utah.

Representative Experience

- Successfully obtained temporary restraining order and permanent injunction in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas to protect confidential trade secret information of a premier aerospace distributor.
- Secured a favorable settlement for client on the last day of a two-week trial, resolving all claims and protecting client's business.
