Divya Reddy is Foley's Chief Practice Officer (CPO), focused on the overall management of the firm's legal departments, practice groups and practice management functions. Divya works with firm leadership to help oversee all department and practice group performance, financial objectives, and the cross-functional execution of related strategies, including business planning and operational and budgeting matters.

Prior to her role as CPO, Divya served as the Operating Officer of Foley & Lardner's national Business Law Department, where she was responsible for strategic, operational, financial, human resources, and project management functions and initiatives.

Divya brings more than 20 years of experience working for AmLaw 100 firms, both as a practicing lawyer as well as in business development and client relations roles. Her law practice focused on domestic and international M&A and corporate matters across a variety of industries, including energy, pharma, health care and food and beverage.
