Sarah Rieger is an intellectual property litigator, representing clients in several industries connected with patent and trademark disputes, licensing disputes, and other areas of intellectual property law. Her experience spans not only district and federal appellate courts but also proceedings before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's Patent Trial and Appeal Board. The clients Sarah works with represent a wide range of sectors, including academic research and licensing, medical devices, health care services, recreational equipment, commercial manufacturing, and hospitality, among others.

Before joining Foley, Sarah gained experience in the intellectual property group of a distinguished law firm as a summer associate, where she engaged in the research of legal issues and case law related to patent, trademark, and copyright litigation and assisted in drafting arguments for motions and briefs.
