Arman Moeini is a corporate attorney focusing on health care transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, divestitures, joint venture arrangements, private financing, and general corporate governance matters. Through his extensive experience in the health care industry and keen understanding of federal and state regulatory frameworks and the reimbursement landscape, Arman provides proficient counsel to his clients by getting ahead of the issues that complicate health care transactions and quickly identifying and negotiating solutions in order to drive transactions to closing.

Arman has represented several high-profile, private equity-backed health care services providers, including in the fields of radiology, behavioral health, gastroenterology, cardiology, dermatology, anesthesia, and dentistry. In addition, his clients include privately-held health systems, physician-owned provider groups, health care technology companies, medical device manufacturers, durable medical equipment providers, surgery centers, home health and hospice agencies, laboratories, telemedicine providers, inpatient rehabilitation facilities, and other ancillary health care services.
