Eugenia (Jenny) Y. Wang is an associate and business lawyer with Foley & Lardner LLP. She is a member of the firm's Finance Practice and the firm's Supply Chain Industry Team. Jenny's areas of focus include drafting commercial contracts and counseling businesses on supply chain matters, including force majeure issues, pricing, procurement strategies, dealer and customer arrangements, licensing issues, consumer and commercial warranties, and logistics and transportation contracts. Jenny is an author and editor of Foley's Blockchain in Supply Chain series, which explores the application of blockchain technology usage in the supply chain. Jenny is also an author of Foley's Tariffs and Your Contracts series, which examines contractual considerations in the face of increased tariff costs.

Jenny is a United States Navy veteran. She was stationed in Monterey, California, and Schofield Barracks, Hawaii for six years as a Chinese linguist.
